Hello,

In just a few weeks, on May 28th, the archbishop is going to be announcing what the changes are going to be to all of the parishes throughout the archdiocese as well as all of the priest moves to staff all of the parishes. We have seen maps and had many discussions regarding the parishes and probably have some idea what we might expect for them. Priests have been asked what they would desire or be willing to accept, and some possible moves have been discussed, but the final decisions have yet to be made and communicated. When a priest moves, that is often done by a phone call asking if the priest would be willing to accept a new assignment, like I did when I found out I would be coming to Assumption. I mention that this week because as the Easter season goes on, Jesus is preparing his apostles to be open to hear His call, to follow Him, and to be open to the workings of the Holy Spirit in their lives. We don't know how or when it will come at times, but we need to be willing to listen to God's word to us as He speaks to us through the Holy Spirit. As a priest I can expect a call like this from the archbishop at times. As lay people you may not expect a call from the archbishop, but you might expect to hear the Holy Spirit in other ways, especially at times when you are going through changes in your lives.

Consider graduations. Whether it is from grade school, high school, or college, it marks a big change in your life. Where will you be going next? And what options do you have? Are we open to the guidance of the Holy Spirit in this decision or not? One way we can consider this is have we only been asking what we want to do, or have we also been considering what God is calling us to do? Sometimes the two will be very much in line with each other, but other times what the Holy Spirit is asking might be more challenging and a bit beyond what we might have been thinking ourselves. I remember one family I knew from a parish where one daughter was graduating from college and another from high school. The college graduate was planning to be going on to graduate school and the high school graduate was planning on heading to college, however both were delaying for a year and were going to work for the poor on another continent first. They were in a more favorable situation than some to be free to make this choice, but I know when I heard this I wondered if I would have been willing to do what they were doing if I was in their situation? And how would I make that decision?

While everyone isn't being asked to do that same thing, it can be a good example for us to consider if we are even open to such a possibility if the Holy Spirit were asking us. For this example, I would imagine a person that had never been on some type of a weeklong mission trip, or even helped on a regular basis with a charity, or given up a Saturday to help a group that feeds the poor or shelters the homeless. If they had never done any of these, I don't think they would hear or understand a call to a year of service to others in a distant land. How have we listened to the Holy Spirit on smaller matters if we are going to be clear about big ones? We need to consider what affects our decisions and what influences we allow in. Just like I don't think you should be applying to the Julliard School if you've never played a musical instrument or acted in a play, we should probably consider how the Holy Spirit may be guiding us in small decisions before we expect to hear Him clearly on the big ones.

Peace,

Fr. Nick

"For thus says the Lord: When you call Me, and come and pray to Me, I will listen to you. When you look for Me, you will find Me. Yes, when you seek Me with all your heart, I will let you find Me..."

Jeremiah 29:10-13

Prayer

In order to become progressively aware of mystery, we need to learn (and teach) the art of asking questions of life—questions that do not lead to easy answers but rather to a deeper appreciation of the mystery of life. The practice of mystagogy involves reflecting on an experience in our life and asking questions. As we continued reflecting with the neophytes the questions on Eucharist from the previous week, we opened the discussion by asking them to share if they had experienced an opportunity to do something kind for someone they may not particularly like since our last meeting.

One person shared how they were able to find a way to forgive someone and be open to spending time with them. Another shared that they really work hard to avoid judgment of others. This was pretty powerful for the group to hear and these comments dovetailed nicely into our discussion of the Communion Rite: Lord's Prayer; Lamb of God, Eucharist.

We shared some comments about how the Lord's Prayer asks us to forgive others as we want God's forgiveness and what that looks like in our lives. Our questions to you: are we authentic when we share the sign of peace? Have we forgiven? Are we right with our neighbor? Receiving Eucharist should be filled with joy somewhat like a family reunion where we are excited to be with the Lord and participating in this beautiful Sacrament. The session ended by reminding everyone to take in their new faith, don't be eager to jump into a ministry so soon. Pray for guidance and you will find where God needs your talents.

So our mission for you, our faith community, would be how will you live out your Eucharist mystagogy this week?

Offering Financial Literacy for Middle School, starting 2023-2024

Assumption has teamed up with the MassMutual Foundation and EVERFI by introduction a new component to our Middle School Social Studies program: Financial Literacy. Assumption knows that as our students move into their teen years, they are impacted by money, costs, and opportunities to spend (or save). Ultimately, understanding finances can dramatically help in planning for a future life. In addition, we also know that by the time students reach middle school, they have already developed the capacity to understand complex economic concepts, make financial judgments, and assign value to purchases and brands. Yet the majority of today's students don't have the money management skills they need to navigate the modern financial world.

Thanks to Mrs. Chassaniol, beginning in August, 2023, our Middle School Social Studies curriculum will introduce and include financial literacy. It will follow curriculum standards for the State of Missouri and empowers students to effectively manage their finances, make sound decisions, and become financially responsible. Through a digital story-based narrative and interactive exercises, students learn to make real-life decisions about their personal finances, as well as how to achieve important goals around saving money, education and career planning, and budgeting. Here are the lessons:

Lesson 1: Students are introduced to the course storyline and participate in their mayoral inauguration! Students also take a "Financial Personality Test," and reflect on their own personal financial priorities, habits and mindsets.

Lesson 2: Students learn the importance of budgeting as they help a character redecorate his room on a limited budget.

Lesson 3: Students learn both the importance of saving and how to manage day-to-day expenses. Students help a character find a job, review his paycheck and credit card statement, and decide when to utilize different payment types.

Lesson 4: Help a character explore different career path options and narrow her interests by examining required skills and interests, income potential, and education and training requirements.

Lesson 5: Students learn all about business growth as they help a business owner with various tasks. Students learn how to open savings and checking accounts and make monthly transaction decisions.

Lesson 6: Send students through a "life simulation" and learn to make important insurance and investment decisions.

Lesson 7: The FutureSmart program comes full circle in this final lesson, as students utilize their newfound knowledge to set their own financial goals and plans for the future. Students create a portfolio piece, known as their "Blueprint," which details future career interests, plans for higher education, and next action steps.

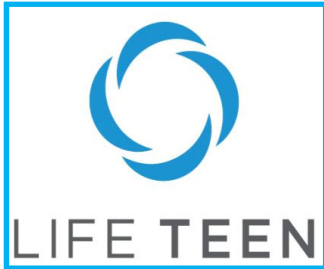

Assumption is looking to the future and planting the seeds of financial literacy to our students!

Crucifixion and Resurrection Painting that was in the Chapel

In Case You Missed It... A special thanks to parishioner and artist, Evelyn Astegno, for displaying her beautiful religious artwork in the Assumption Chapel during the week of Easter. Our hope was that the Crucifixion and Resurrection paintings would help those praying in the Chapel to be open to speaking to God and hear his words.
