Faith Perspectives: Rebuilding the Catholic Church

*Excerpt from the St. Louis Post Dispatch
Saturday, August 25, 2018*

I write this not as an expert but as a devoted, active Catholic layperson, a father and a grandfather, a person who loves the church and has served in a diverse number of volunteer roles for nearly 40 years: I feel like I have been kicked in the gut and betrayed by a close friend and nobody cares enough to make the systematic kicking stop.

Pope Francis recently acknowledged the “shame and repentance” of the Catholic Church’s failure to act on decades of sexual abuse by clerics against our young people. He stated emphatically that the Church “showed no care for the little ones; we abandoned them.” Like many Catholics, I appreciate his words, but they are not enough.

All members of the Church — not just the little ones who were targeted and abused — have been abandoned, or at least that’s how many of us feel. Parents who have for so long encouraged their children to serve and deeply respect our priests and bishops without question feel betrayed and guilty for not paying close enough attention. We have let our children down.

During the Second Vatican Council, the church (meaning all its members) was encouraged to “read the signs of the times” and discern their lives accordingly. So the time has come for more than words of shame and repentance, although those are a good place to start, the place where healing might begin. For as grieved as I am, I am not without hope and I am not giving up.

I am not going to give up on a faith that has nurtured me in many ways because some who run it are corrupt and evil.

CONTINUED ➡

But neither can I remain silent and simply “pray for those in authority” and hope that they change, for many of them have shown all too often that they cannot. We need real change.

We as a church need to rethink what oversight and transparency of church governance and decision-making means in such an ancient and entrenched institution. We need to embrace the idea that the church really is the people within it. We need to remember that the church is filled with thousands upon thousands of experienced and educated-in-the-faith lay and religious people (including women with doctorates in canon law) with the expertise to drive change — women and men who run large organizations, hospitals, universities, corporations, small businesses and families — and put them in positions of true influence and responsibility and not mere advisory roles. Power within the universal church needs to be shared with all the people of the church if real change is to happen.

Then the members of the hierarchy must be willing to accept these new decisions and policymakers as they would their fellow clerics. They must be open to new ideas that reflect both the deep traditions of the church and the needs of the world today. And today one of our greatest needs is for a rejuvenated church that loves and protects its people (especially the least among them) as much as it does its reputation and standing in the world.

The Catholic Church needs to continue to remove leaders who are harming church members by their actions and inaction and trust that God will raise up leaders to take their places — a new generation more intent on bringing Christ and his love to the world and less concerned about clerical control and protection of their and their fellow clerics’ legacies, false and flimsy as those may be. For it is this conspiracy (from the Latin for “breathing together”) of lies and deceit that is most dangerous of all.

It’s time to rebuild the church again, and those who live inside the wreckage cannot be allowed to repair it on their own. This past Wednesday’s reading from the lectionary included this warning from Ezekiel: “Woe to the shepherds of Israel who have been pasturing themselves! Should not shepherds, rather, pasture sheep?”

It’s time for a Third Vatican Council, perhaps, with an eye toward creating a church that better and more fully reflects what it means to be Christ in and for the world instead of a secretive and often corrupt organization that exists in order to maintain its moral hold on its members — for that is slipping quickly from its grasp.

In the early 13th century, St. Francis of Assisi heard a voice telling him to “rebuild my church.” Although he believed at first the voice was telling him to physically rebuild the crumbling church of St. Damiano, he eventually realized he had much more work to do as a reformer and spiritual rebuild of the Catholic Church. Today, we need others (clerics, religious, deacons and especially laypeople) to hear that same call and respond. There is much work to be done.

Steve Givens is associate vice chancellor and chief of staff at Washington University, a spiritual director and widely published writer on Christian spirituality. He is a member of Incarnate Word Parish in Chesterfield.

"For thus says the Lord:
When you call Me, and come and pray to Me, I will listen to you. When you look for Me, you will find Me. Yes, when you seek Me with all your heart, I will let you find Me..."

Blue Mass for Emergency Responders

September 8 & 9 ~ ALL MASSES

FIRST RESPONDERS, please wear dress uniform. We want to HONOR YOU!

The History of the Blue Mass...

The Blue Mass dates back to 1934, when a Catholic priest from the Archdiocese of Baltimore, Maryland, organized the Catholic Police and Firemen's Society while stationed at St. Patrick Church in Washington, D.C. More than 1,000 police and firemen, dressed in their blue uniforms, attended that first Blue Mass, which was celebrated on September 29, 1934.

The tradition of showing gratitude to emergency responders and their families in this way has continued throughout the United States. This Mass honors those currently serving as emergency responders as well as those who have died in the line of duty and brings a greater awareness of those who serve us so faithfully, often placing others' lives and safety above their own. Our lives are a gift from God, given to us that we might in turn give our lives in service to Him and to others.

Those who have dedicated their lives in service as emergency responders are living out this truth, and we gather together today to celebrate them. THANK YOU for your service! In a special way, we remember all those responders on September 11, 2001... may the Lord give each one of us the courage, grace, and strength to truly be effective instruments of his love and mercy.

September 2, 2018 — Twenty-second Sunday in Ordinary Time

DT 4:1-2, 6-8; PS 15:2-5; JAS 1:17-18, 21B-22, 27; MK 7:1-8, 14-15, 21-23

In today's Gospel from Mark, Jesus instructs us in the best way we can honor Him, teaching us the meaning of true worship. Jesus reveals that the way we truly worship Him is by giving Him our hearts. We also learn in this Gospel passage what our Lord does not want — the pious lip service that the scribes and Pharisees offer.

But how can we determine if we really are giving our hearts over to the Lord and not just paying Him lip service? We must examine our lives to see if they reflect a life lived out for Him. Stewardship gives us a concrete means to examine our lives in three fundamental areas — the use of our time, our talents, and our material gifts.

A stewardship way of life invites and challenges us to make specific commitments in each of these areas on a regular basis, giving us a practical means to commit to the Lord. How well we are keeping these commitments can give us a kind of measuring stick to see if we are growing closer to Him, or perhaps need to put a little more effort into a particular area of our lives.

When we all strive to give God true worship — putting Him first with all our hearts — what beauty we will find in our homes, our parish, and our world. ~ Excerpts from: Catholic Diocese of Wichita

The Ministry of Sponsor

In reaching out to those who have expressed a desire to become Catholic, the Church wishes to share its tradition, its life, its values, its prayers, its apostolic work. Because so much is involved, it takes quite a while to pass on these traditions. As practicing Catholics, many of us take all this for granted. The Christian Initiation process calls for each inquirer to have a sponsor. Sponsors are active members of the parish community who serve as companions to the inquirers. The attributes we look for include:

- Someone who has an obvious prayer life (e.g., attends Sunday Mass)
- Someone who is available for weekly sessions
- Someone who displays the virtue of friendship (a good listener, open to a new friendship)
- Someone who would see sharing their faith and the faith journey of another as a great thing

What is involved in being a sponsor for someone who is being initiated into the Catholic Church? You are paired up with an inquirer and attend Sunday sessions with that person. You extend, in a personal way, the parish community's welcome and support. The joy and faith, the personal stories, struggles, and insights of new members will renew your own faith and sense of belonging to the Church. As you share some of your own life and faith, you will uncover for yourself new dimensions of being a Catholic Christian. Consider volunteering for the ministry of sponsor in our parish! To find out more please call Janice Aholt, RCIA Sponsor Coordinator, at (636) 544-7890.
